Stable Economy: A Treatise on the Management of Horses, in relation to subling, grooming, feeding watering and working. By John Stewart. From the third English edition, with notes and additions, adapting it to American food and climate. By A.E. Allen. New-York: Appleton & Co.

This will doubless form a valuable work to all who have the care of that useful animal, the horse. We do not know how far the management and treatment recommended by the author may differ from the general practice in the best regulated stables in this country, but we observe that throughout the entire work kindness, humanity, if you please, is never lost sight of. The barbarous and ridiculous practice of docking and wicking are justly condemned.

Association in Michigan.—The last number of the Alphadelphia Tocsin gives the following gratifying account of the triumph of the first attempt at Industrial Association in Michigan over its immediate difficulties:

We are greatly rejoiced to be able to inform our friends abroad, that at the meeting advertised in the second number of the Tocsin, provision was made for paying off the whole land debt of our Association, as it becomes due. It is true that we shall have but little left, after this debt is paid, to begin manufacturing with, even if all the property abroad is sold, and that some of unacconsiderable individual sacrifices on our property, but we do it cheerfully for the good of mankind, and hope that some of the many persons who are auxious to join an Association, will row wist us, with a view to invest means sufficient occurs.

FOR THE PILES:—Are you afficted with Piles?

Try, then, without delay, Doctor Upham's Vegerable Electuary, the best remedy ever offered to public notice. This really excellent medicine is the result of a thorough medical education and a complete knowledge of the disease for which it is recommended. The most triumphant success attends its administration.

Bead the following remarkable cases:
A lady, residing in Norfolk street, was seriously afficted with Piles; se great was her suffering that, to use her own expression, life was a burden; for four weeks she had been attended by one of our most emment Physicians, without the least benefit. Satisfied that it was an aggravated case of Piles, I prescribed the Electuary; two boxes were used.

of Piles, I prescribed the Electuary; two boxes were used. Six months after, the same lady cailed on me to prescribe for another complaint, and then informed me that she was perfectly cured of the Piles by the two boxes, and had experienced no return since.

Mrs. G. residing in Greene street, called on me last spring, saying, that she had been affected with Piles for two years, accompanied by pain in the side, palpitation of the heart, a sense of straightness across the chest, and coppression, she was unable to lie down without devating the head and chest considerably; resting horizontally produced a sense of suffocation, followed by a cough. By using one box of the Electuary, the pain in the side, palpitation and oppression ceased, she could lie down without leconvenience, and the Piles were partially removed, and a second box made a complete cure, to the great gratineation of the patient.
